Author Md Shadik Hossain Shakib Bogura, Bangladesh

I, Md Shadik Hossain Shakib, am

the writer of this book. I've tried my best to share some of my experiences in this book. In this book, you'll be able to know much more about my experiences over the course of exploring Dhaka. Why getting education from life experience is up to any education. If you read this book, you will get a complete idea on it. This book has been cloged with eleven chapters. If you put foundation under the castle, you have to have a peculire idea on real-experience. If you read each one of them, you will be able to build castle in the air. In this book, I tried to focus on some tremendous experiences I achieved through my last travel. What sorts of difficulties I faced. Who was my partner? How his personalities are. Each and everything you'll enjoy by reading this. Am I able to express my feelings to you at all? It'll wholly depend on your patient. So good luck for you. Have a great reading experience. Love you all guys.

Don't miss to read chapter one and chapter eleven.

Some words

This book is written with super simple words and sentences. According to me, the book written with very complicated sentences which readers can't understand is not a book that can win one's liberal heart effortlessly. Who are the best writers? Those who express their internal thoughts with easy and simple ways.

Hemingway. William Faulking said of Hemingway: He has never been known to use a word that might send the reader to the dictionary Ernest Hemingway is an American novelist who is very famous for his ability to make someone understand something with easiest ways.

Mr. AJ Hoge, the author of Effortless English, always says that those who use very uncommon words, complicated idioms, phrases are absolutely stupid. That is why I follow the method which makes me easy to write along with my most respectful readers can take it easily. It doesn't mean I can't write with uncommon sentence patterns. With my own knowledge as well as taking knowledge from online or different sources, I can absolutely write a book full of difficult grammatical facts like subjunctives, ellipsis, inversion etc. But it will be so difficult for most of my readers and so will I. So be easy in writing and easy in every sector of life. I believe none will feel terrible while reading my book.

❖ Why experience is up to any education

How can we get proper education? Which method should we follow to be a perfect educated person? By reading thousands of books? Or following stupid hidden curriculum textbooks?

None of them is effective to be a perfect educated person. Those who are immortalised in the pages of history must get their education by real life experiences. But our hidden curriculum system never ever understands its importance. That is why most of the time we have to hear such sentence 'I'm GPA 5.' It's ludicrous. Our school never encourages us to do something unalike. They follow one stupid rule; read books, get good marks in exam, struggle to get a job, no problem how your jobs are like, no need to get married before getting a job, being an entrepreneur is not a respective work. Just follow one rule;

WORK HARD

WORK HARD TO GET GOOD

MARKS AND A JOB

ABIDE BY YOUR BOSS

WORK HARD AND SAVE MONEY

IT'S A NEVER-ENDING PROCESS.
FOLLOWING THIS STUPID METHOD,
ONE CAN MAKE MONEY BUT NEVER GET RICH OR BECOME FINANCIALLY
FREE.

So, what is the secret methods following them we can be an authentic educated person? What? It's so simple. Real life experiences will make us appropriate educated. If we can build this method in our main part of education in lieu of stupid method, success will knock our door. Here school exam may help you feel excited for a while. But it's completely useless.

Suppose there are two stages.

To jump into one stage to another stage, you have to face a strong door. If you would like to go to the 2nd stage, you must open the door, you must collect the key of that door first. So how can you get the key? The key that you have to collect by facing real life difficulties, working hard in your life, doing some different things, effective things, in a word by gaining real-life experiences. It's the key point to collect the key. Now school exam can help you reach the door. It will never give you the key which is main thing. It will only help you change your academic position. 1-2, intermediate to higher intermediate. That's it. You can't be successful only depending on exam. Never. These sorts of words are not only mine at all. The most successful persons in the world speak the same things. Look at the picture;

Now it's time to talk about how to choose the right way to obtain life experience. The very easy and simple method of life experience is to explore different places in your country or all over the world. It depends on your budget. If you have enough budget, you can see the unseen of the world. If you do that, trust me your knowledge level will be enlarged peculiarly. So, I can feel it better. These experiences might seem to you very simple but mind it thinking without taking action and plunging yourself into getting experience in real-life are not similar at all. There are copious differences between these two. I know how much more enjoyable it is instead of staying trapped in my own house and being terrified thinking about what if my mother becomes a victim of a kidnapped son. It's silly. Right? Some of the parents in our society remain horrified all the time thinking about the unreasonable things like kidnapping, losing money, becoming disappeared blah blah blah. Consequently, they don't let their son travel the world. Remember:

"Dependence makes a lame completely lame."

I have seen many parents who don't let their son play with his comrades. They keep their son tapped in a room with lots of textbooks; History, Physics, Biology, Logic, Mathematics etc. Their command is like your comrades will destroy your career; they will be main obstacle for you in case of getting higher marks in exam. If he spends some quality time with them due to refreshing his brain, his mother will catch his ear and box in the middle point of his backrest. Then they will use some slang words to their son but they(slags) are for his comrades. If a son and his comrades fight one another, most of our parents apply a silly technique to control their anger. They beat their own children in front of the parents of their son's friends. It's not anger on their son. It's the anger on those companions. They want their son not to do anything he likes instead of their choices. They keep their son far away from being independent learner. According to them, the stupid textbooks will give their son a great chance to live in a utopia in this world. But reality doesn't say the same thing. It's completely ridiculous that reading textbooks in lieu of learning from independent life experience will give someone something precious. It will give nothing but a human robot. In this relevant case, I would like to share a funny story about my childhood.

In my childhood, I didn't love to read textbooks. Even I didn't like to go to school and so don't I now. I played cricket, football etc. throughout whole day. As a result, my parents daily beat me as taking medicine in 3 times a day or more. They imprisoned me in a room and told me to read textbooks throughout the day. I remained terrified all time. I felt depressed for the while. But my parents' heart was not able to get my feelings. This is because she is brainwashed with the flowing system. When my exam knocked my door, I also knocked my inside door to open and invite the happiest things I loved for coming out. I locked my door of my room and started to make cricket hand gloves using shopping bags because I liked more to make hand gloves and played cricket with that stuffs than getting good marks in exam at that time. At that period, I was a small robot. I had to do anything I hated. There was no time to think about what I liked and what I hated. Now my parents have understood the actual thing that is why they give no excuse on me in case of exploring the new place and getting reallife education and learning independently.

"If you lock your physical disordered son inside your room thinking about what if he again becomes a victim of physical disorder, then he will automatically become a more physical disordered one."

One more story: Walden by Henry David Thoreau, a book, is written on the author's experience and experiment. The experiment was to prove that we actually don't need a lot. We don't need to work so hard by spending so many hours. For the experiment, he, a transcendentalists, decided to go and live into the woods leaving his own city Massachusetts, and then built a very small little simple house next to a small lake and lived in it by himself. He started to live a very simple life there with relaxation. And then he wrote this book about his experience. Now, of course, this is something that people have done for centuries and centuries, holy people, spiritual people, philosophers. In many different periods of history, in many different locations in the world, they've gone off by themselves to some small remote place away from other people to think, to live simply and to get real-life experience. That's why they were super strong in both mentally and physically. This is a book about his experience for that he spent two years with nature, animals; birds, mice sitting on his table having dinner beside him, keeping him company. What a simple life he spent! In common hours, we tried to buy some expensive stuffs like computer, iPod, smartphone etc. And he taught us that this is the source of unhappiness if you are always trying to get more and more. It's true. Sitting inside the 4 walls without taking action for obtaining life experience that we need to address tends to clog our courage to do something. If you have dream and cough your internal spirit up for going to take life experience, you will be surprised at your success. It will be less difficult than you imagined. New laws will open around you. If you don't have a little dime at the time of traveling or something like H.D Thoreau did in woods, just take action with brave and see that your almighty is going to help you tremendously. But Almighty is going to wait until you are confident, until you actually try to live your biggest journey. One of my brothers had only 20 BDT in his pocket. Depending on Almighty, he jumped into passing one month with this 20 BDT. And he successfully passed one month with 20 BDT hand cost. It has been possible for his powerful brave and having powerful mentality of taking action for experience. Always remember if you build a castle in the air, you will be successful faster. But you have to have the strong mentality of taking action and getting experience. H.D Thoreau went to the woods and spent 2 years for getting real-life experience. Inspired by him, my favourite coach, AJ, started to live in a car when he was poor. H.D Thoreau experienced it in the woods and AJ did in his car. Thoreau was a person of old era but AJ is someone living in this modern era. So, compared to both of them, both are same. He is a modern version of Thoreau. Instead of paying in a rented house, he started to live in his own paid car. he put a long piece of wood on the passenger side. Then he lowered the passenger seats all the way down. And then putting the wood, he prepared a little flat inside the car. Finally, he laid down on this little bed and his nose was about just a few centimetres from the roof of the car. It's so funny right. You will know a complete idea about the craziest thing done by AJ in my next book. Pray for me for that. Now my question is;

Is it really easy to you? Isn't it a great experience? Isn't it a great experiment? Absolutely Yes. Absolutely Yes. Now he is more capable to adapt to any difficult conditions he will face in future because he has a great experience of living in a car in a miserable situation in one period of his life. On the other hand, Henry David Thoreau shifted him into wood to do a powerful experiment. As a result, he gained a super powerful experience of living in a forest for two years. By this, he had got capable to live anywhere he wanted with simplicity. This is the power of life experience. This is the power of this book, 'The Experience'. Remember:

"Experiment makes someone experienced."

Try to get the importance of it. Try to do it first in the kaizen way over the course of several days or weeks and summon your knowledge in an innovative way and enjoy it independently. Save in your Hippocampus that life experience is up to any education system. Go to the different place and learn independently through facing plenty of difficulties.

And glorify to the Almighty that I have visited many districts in my own country. Such as; Cox's Bazar, the longest sea beach in the world, Kuakata sea beach, Sundarban, Rajshahi, Rangpur, Khulna, Bagerhat, Barisal, Patuakhali, Dinajpur, Kustia, Dhaka, Narayanganj, Gazipur, Sirajganj, Tangail, Bogura etc. So, I have lots of real-life experiences that most of my college friends don't have. I feel something tremendous by traveling the unseen place. However, you will also feel it a little bit if you read this book chapter by chapter. It's the ending of this chapter. Let's jump into the next chapter.

The capital of Bangladesh is Dhaka. It's a super busy city in the world. But to explore Dhaka alone or with someone is a new experience. I am a lucky one who has got many opportunities to explore this remarkable city. In December of the last year (2022), I came to Dhaka for a specific objective. That was my 1st train journey after my childhood. I travelled by train when I was $9\10$ years old. Now I am 18. The journey was super incredible because of some real-life mixed experiences. But one thing that made me super depressed during the train journey. I had a travel partner with me. An unkind person came near us and asked us to buy some food from him. As we were hungry due to missing our breakfast, we had to buy some snacks from him. He told that if you want to buy this, you need pay 50 Taka. He told it very slowly. It's a technique that the unkind person applied.

A few minutes later he again came to us and created force on us to pay 150 Taka. To tell 50 Taka slowly and later add 100 or 200 Taka with no reason is a very bad creative technique to scam someone.

We were the bad victims of that day. We had to pay 150 taka. It was a dark humoured real-life experience. It thought us how to stay away from these sorts of persons in train. If we read this in a book and never faced in real life, we never understood the real affair at all. Let's get a little bit about the importance of real-life experience by a short/strong story. It's a part of a very famous book.

The book, The Alchemist by Paulo Coelho, tells the same thing. Try to explore the world. The wisdom by exploring new place is your treasure. It's your success. In that book, Santiago, the hero of the book, met an alchemist, giving up everything except his mission, was offered by the alchemist some bars of gold. But the alchemist never discouraged him to stop his journey to the great pyramids. Santiago had a dream to go to the pyramids and found out the treasure. Since he got the treasure from the alchemist, he had no reason to go to Egypt crossing the vast desert because he got enough, the alchemist gave him enough. The alchemist didn't support him to quit his long cherishing desire. He successfully reached his destination with facing a number of difficulties. If he decided to quit his journey, he would miss hundreds of more experiences. That is why the alchemist didn't encourage him to quit. This is the importance of obtaining experience, not just becoming a bookworm. If you fall in danger, the books can never help you perfectly. But if you have thousands of experiences on how to protect yourself in a bad situation, it will help you tremendously to overcome the woeful situation. Yeah, now we can protect ourselves from such scam that happened in the train because we have experience on it. By the way, waiting 6/7 hours, we were able to leave the train. Our station name was Dhaka Airport Railway Station. Reaching our destination was starting to take up a lot of our time because of Dhaka's craziest jam.

No sooner had we left the train than we faced the craziest jam. It's very common for those who know a lot more about this. But those who are new comers here will feel board much. The local people of Dhaka face it many times in a week. Some of them utilize the time by doing something that they miss for the disgusting jam. We felt board. Travelling 6/7 hours by a train, falling in jam is like something super boring. After leaving the train, a new tough experience we faced at that time is not to eat heavy food for a long time. We had to feel trouble to find a single shop where we could buy heavy food like rice with curry.

To fail to buy heavy food, we had to go to my uncle's house, where we planned to stay the 1st night. So, we each other had to cook in my uncle's kitchen. The responsibility to cook rice was imposed upon me. I used much water instead of using the right amount. As a result, the picture of the overflowing dish of rice was like;

One of my beloved brothers, Md Mamun Hossain, managed all the things so easily. He was my travel partner. Then we might be able to cook our meals and eat them all.

It's about time to share with you another experience. We struggled with bedbugs, one kind of dangerous insect.

My uncle has changed their previous condo because of protecting themselves from this super dangerous insect. Anyway, living together with them, bedbugs, is like living in a horrible forest full of ferocious animals. We did it. We killed lots of them. It's a new experience. We will never fear like we could do if we didn't face it in real life. Just imagine how it would be if someone didn't know anything about the dangerous insect and never faced it in reallife at all. Oh my God. Getting up in the morning, he would run a few miles seeing his wounded body caused by the bedbugs. It's so funny. We faced it in real-life. So, we know how the real body shape of the insect looks like. The December trip teaches us such dangerous experiences.

"Go outside to gain experience. And see how many inconceivable incidents may happen in your life that you didn't expect inside 4 walls."

I explored Dhaka many times. But all the times I together with my parents or uncle explored. In December of the last year, I explored Dhaka with my brother. Both of us are not as expect as we should be. That is why I called it is my alone exploration.

In this chapter, I will share a story of Dhaka university and meeting with my sister there.

We went to Dhaka university to meet with my sister as well as explore the whole university. It's the number one public university in Bangladesh. The weather of that day was not good enough at all. The weather was very bad and hot. My sister offered us Teheri, the famous main course of Dhaka. I brought a bottle of Pepsi. The combination of Teheri and Pepsi was just boom.

We ate them in a botanical garden of Dhaka university. It was also a great experience in my life. After doing these sorts of stuffs, we visited many beautiful places of Dhaka university with my sister.

At last, we alone went to Mouchak, a part of Dhaka city, to meet with a teacher. Then our real struggle was started. After completing our meeting, we fell in depression because of some things. I don't want to share them right now. Our destination was from Mouchak to Tongi. But we didn't know which transport was available for giving us service. For this reason, we started walking. We walked about 2/3 kilometres and failed to find a single bus. At that time, we began talking each other it's the worst city in the world and feeling super depressed. A motorcycle ride shared person came near us and offered us to ride with him. But you know the amount of money in motorcycle is so high compared to buses. So, we disagreed with his proposal. With his claimed amount, we could reach Tongi as well as having dinner at the same time. So why we did go with his motorcycle. As we are students, it's very true that we won't have much money. Waiting much time, all at once, we became successful to find out a bus. It was also a remarkable experience in my life.

At next day, another bad experience we faced in Dhaka. On the way of returning home, we went to Dhaka airport railway station to buy a ticket but we didn't get. We returned home standing all the road. Sometimes we got chance to sit down on the dining table of the train. The journey was super terrible. I'll never forget the journey.

To be a great writer is one of my missions. I would like to write down all the books. articles based on my own real-life experiences. This book is nothing but that. In my life, I have coincidentally got a brother. It will be wrong if I call it coincidence. Almighty has written down it in my faith. He was not born as a member of my family or was not born from my mother's womb. But he is more than that. Our relationship is like the relationship between Laili and Maznu. His position is up to many. His appearance purifies my heart. Each of his words help me link the chain of new dream. Staying in his vicinity, I become able to learn the real meaning of dreaming. What does the word dream mean? Let's give some great definitions from great sources. To dream means a wish to have or be something specially one that seems difficult to achieve. Something that you want to happen very much but that is not very likely. A wish to do, be, or having something used specially when this seems unlikely. The main words are difficult, unlikely and not likely. He teaches me the main concept of dream. Doing mashup all of these concepts, he provided me his own concept which made me super enthusiastic to dream in a new way. Always dream a super big dream, never think early about the result of your dream. If you stay connected with your dream, no way to fail although it will seem super difficult. These are totally an extraordinary combination of those definitions. It's not plagiarism, it's a complete research. Do you know the difference between plagiarism and research? So, let's learn an amazing thing with a little break from the main concept. I'm using Italian font so that you can't vanish in the maze.

Copying from one place is plagiarism; Copying from multiple places is research.

The two words 'copy' and 'plagiarism' are very popular nowadays. There are many examples of this, especially in Bollywood movies and music. Anu Malik, Nadeem-Shravan, Bappi Lahiri, Pritam even R. D. Burman, some directors of our country, some song composers are also accused of theft, but these people answer that we just took inspiration. Plagiarism is when the content of another is picked up and copied as it is. These two words are also very important in business and education. It is not wrong for a businessman to start his own business by copying another successful business model, which is called 'copy-cat' method. But in higher education there is a lot of debate about copying PhD dissertations, MBA projects and dissertations.

The most important thing in your research is to present what you have learned from others in your own way. Here it is better to acquire knowledge from different sources and incorporate it in business or academic research without using just one source. Just remember, if you steal from one man, it's plagiarism. If you steal from several, it's research.

He stole from several and created his own which is like you dream always super big thing. Never think it in a difficult way. To reach the peak point of your dream, you must face plenty of difficulties. But if your goal remains strict, if you have impowering belief in your heart, you will see yourself in your victory. I always remembered worse tempered about my dream. He showed me the real scenario of dream.

"When you make a dream, you are making a little world where you control the laws, everything."

My brother thought me thousands of things which are very important in our life. Meeting with him was one of my great experiences. The reason behind meeting with him was my 2nd book, 'The incidents I faced'. I have written down the 2nd book and posted it on Facebook. My brother read it attentively and knocked me on Messenger with loads of appreciations. That was my inspiration to write down this book. That was my inspiration to dream a new dream. That was my great chance to build a great relationship with a great steadiness of character.

"Legal relationship is something that gives ultimate happiness."

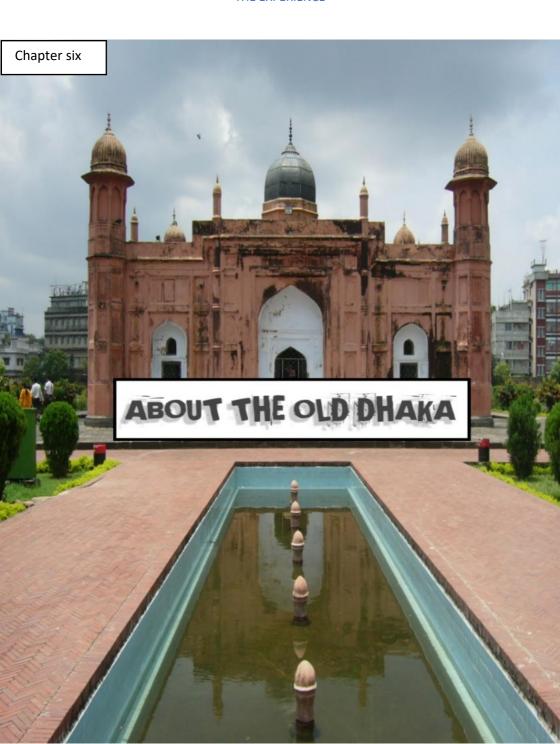

When my internal world plunging into copious depression invites me to throw myself towards the danger zones, Allah occurs the arrival of my brother with his viewless hand. Even one week ago, I didn't have a single piece of experience to meet with him face to face at all but by the welfare of the internet, the time we spent using internet is not as less as the relationship of a girlfriend and boyfriend. he dislikes the software messenger. So, we maintained our conversation using WhatsApp. We have talked each other for hours and hours. If we calculate the whole time, it will be the equal time of some days. After my first nice chat with him, I forgot all of my distresses. I have learnt from him how to overcome myself when I plunge into depression. How complicated someone's life can be if I look at him, I got it. Sometimes I wonder thinking about how much a man can struggle in his life. Being able to meet with a person full of plenty of extraordinary qualities, I feel utterly proud. How much experience I have achieved meeting with him for the first time and living with his story together is the main story of this book.

Now it's time to talk about the historical day when we met first. I came to Dhaka with a view to meeting with him and spending some qualitative time. Our plan was to meet in the national railway station of Bangladesh, Kamlapur Railway station. Because of some extra activities, I could fail to implement my plan accurately. I had to move Tongi first in my uncle's house because some of my uncle's office staffs requested me to bring some pieces of yogurts. You know yogurt of our district is worldwide popular. Its glorification is super-duper praiseworthy. Would you mind talking a little bit about how famous yogurt is in our locality? I think it's not something which is irrelevant. It's completely relevant. Let's share some sentences about it. Those who taste the yogurt of our district for the first time must sing an adorable song of its pure taste. I have seen such people who come Bogura and stand behind lots of people with having only reason which is to buy yogurt. Can you imagine a person crossing over hundreds of kilometres comes to Bogura to buy some dishes of yogurts? That is why my uncle's office stuffs requested me to bring the yogurts. I abided by their request. So, I failed to meet my brother in our specific location. Anyway, the same day my uncle invited him to come his story and join the Iftar (breaking fast-Ramadan fact). He accepted my maternal uncle's proposal and came here where I am staying right now. Our first meeting was like Bangla Cinema. Ha Ha. My brother stayed opposite side of the road and I was in another side. I raised my hand up with phone call. Utilizing these two methods, we became successful to see each other. What a moment man! I never thought that someone will come in my life and my heart will love him too much. I think this kind of love we can see between two persons who are usually two genders. But in my point of view, it's entirely different. It's indubitably my pleasure to have him in a part of my life. After our first face to face meeting, we hugged each other and shared some quick feelings. He said that I am skinny enough. I'm visually a little different means skinny in body fitness than different in virtually. An interesting incident occurred there. I went to pick him but I forgot to keep money in my pocket due to excitement. I had dramatically 10 Taka in my pocket. If it didn't have, the Rickshaw puller, a person pulled the traditional transport of Bangladesh, could give punishment because of my empty pocket. To take rickshaw charge from him for the first time was like something awkward for me. I felt so nervous for this. I didn't do anything. I had to take money from my brother. As soon as he came in our unplanned location, we started taking Iftar. Completing that, we started saying prayer. I was the leader of that prayer. Then we started plenty of chatting.

As I have a strong desire to spend time with him in his own apartment, I didn't late at all to do that. No sooner had we completed saying prayers, we went to the old Dhaka (Puran Dhaka).

Now it's time to talk about the old Dhaka.

Let's read the history and other things about Old Dhaka.

HISTORY OF PURAN DHAKA

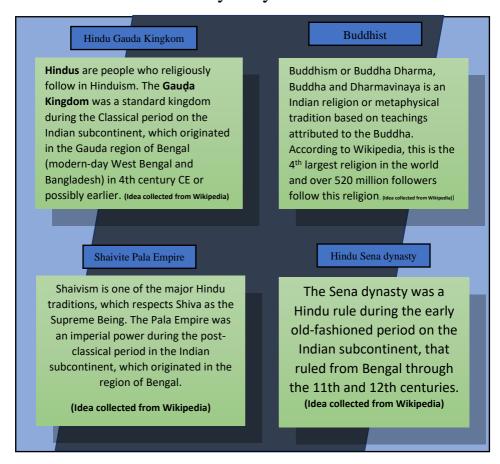

Puran Dhaka, more commonly referred to as Old Dhaka, is the original part of the Dhaka Metropolitan City which serves as the capital of Bangladesh. Old Dhaka is located on the banks of Buriganga River. Age-old traditions and a sense of community among the residents of Puran Dhaka have remained particularly strong as the rest of the city continues to modernize. Many agree that the taxes of the residents of this ancient settlement are different from general Bengali culture and to explore the streets of Old Dhaka is to take a journey back in time.

Dhaka (Old Dhaka) is one of the oldest densely populated mega cities of the World. The history of this city is so rich. The area of this city was ruled by the Hindu Gauda Kingdom, Buddhist and Shaivite Pala Empire before passing to the control of the Hindu Sena dynasty in the 10th century CE.

Here four things you should know.

- 1. Hindu Gauda Kingdom
- 2. Buddhist
- 3. Shaivite Pala
- 4. Hindu Sena dynasty

The city was ruled by the Hindu Deva Dynasty, after the Sena dynasty. Dhaka was continually governed by the Turkic and Afghan governors plunging from the Delhi Sultanate, followed by the Bengal Sultanate, before the arrival of the Mughals in 1608. The city became industrialised and declared capital of the Mughal Bengal and commercial (financial) capital of the Mughal India. The Dhaka natural riverine port has a recorded existence since the 16th century CE. Dhaka's planned riverine location in Bengal made it a centre for Eurasian traders (Those who do business), including Armenians, the Portuguese, French, Dutch and British. The busy old city was known as the Venice of the East. After Mughals, British ruled the region for 200 years until the independence of India in 1947. After the independence of Bangladesh in 1971, Dhaka became the capital of the new state. This is called the proper way of learning history. We explored Old Dhaka. We were introduced to different historical places of Old Dhaka and knew about the history of those places. This is the proper way of learning history. If I need know the history about a person or any place, I can easily search on internet and know about that. Why I will memorize it in a gigantic size of book. I don't understand. 90% of students of my class hate the History subject and so definitely do I. I like history but I don't like the History subject that is used in our school, college and university.

remember:

"Introducing ourselves with history by seeing in real life is much more effective than reading in a history book. Mind it, history is not something that you memorize in a book. It is something that you know naturally and effortlessly."

TRADITIONS OF PURAN DHAKA

Old Dhaka is full of abundance of traditional things. It has verity of foods with mind blowing taste. The area has hundreds of mosques. Such notable mosques are: Chawk Mosque, Sitara Mosque, Hussaini Dalan Mosque, Saat Masjid, Khan Mohammad Mridha Mosque, Star Mosque, Binat Bibi Mosque, Kartalab Khan Mosque etc. That's why Dhaka is called the city of mosque.

The area also has lots of famous constructions like; Ahsan Manzil, Lalbagh Fort, Bangabandhu Memorial Museum, Bara and Choto Katras etc. The most famous Haji Biryani, Nanna Biryani are also available there. The area has well known schools like Dhaka Collegiate School, St. Gregory's High School & College, Pogos High School, K. L. Jubilee High School &

College Bangla Bazar Govt. Girls High School and St. Francis Xavier's Girls School & College. Jagannath University is a leading public university in the country located at Old Dhaka. Dhaka College campus was initially located at Dhaka Collegiate School premise before moving to its current location. Sir Salimullah Medical College was founded in 1875 in Old Dhaka; its hospital wing is Mitford Hospital.

TRANSPORT SYSTEM

Old Dhaka is located on the banks of Buriganga River. Old Dhaka has little of public transport set-up. Cycle rickshaw is the best option. Buses are used by locals but signage is rare and utterly confusing for a tourist. The Sadarghat river terminal, on Buri Ganga River, in the southernwestern part of the district a major port for river transport and can be a useful way of reaching Dhaka from other cities. Look at the next page in order to doing realistic of your imagination.

OTHER THINGS ABOUT THE OLD DHAKA

Many of the houses along the narrow roads and alleyways of Old Dhaka include workshops where men and women work at various crafts to make a living, and visiting tourists may want to consider supporting local trade at the local markets. Street sellers/vendors sell breads and sweets, while Shankhari Bazar is a popular spot to find bangles, spices, and textiles. River boat trips start out from the Sadarghat area. Attractions in Old Dhaka include Lalbagh Fort, the Pink Palace, Khan Mohammed Mridha's mosque, Ruplal House, the Armenian Church, and Tara Masjid in Bangsal. While not necessarily seen as a tourist attraction, Sadarghat ferry terminal in Old Dhaka offers an interesting view of daily life as more than 30,000 passengers use the terminal each day and the flow of people, bicycles and rickshaws is endless. Whether you are there to engage in history, or enjoy a cultural festival, a visit to Old Dhaka is sure to be a memorable experience.

I had a great experience of some of the places notated by me in the above articles. And I'm here to share them with you in the next chapters.

I discovered Dhaka in a different way from my purely personal point of view. I have explored Dhaka many times. It can be up to 20 times. But to explore Dhaka acutely in my adulthood (I'm 18) was one of my notable experiences. I travelled most of the places around modern and old Dhaka when I was child (10-15).

In this Ramadan (2023), I went to old Dhaka along with other places in Dhaka. In this chapter, I will talk about the old Dhaka that I explored. Due to some unanticipated worst circumstances, I have had to think the negative aspects about old Dhaka. Always I have heard that old Dhaka is worst. The local people of that area are super hazardous. But when I went there, I discovered the mixed experiences. Yes, the actual environment of old Dhaka is really bad but its traditions will make you obedient to think a bit. Its history is so precious that you must feel proud as a member of Bangali lineage. Several sorts of foods you will get here will send you in a different planet for a while. The varieties of foods of old Dhaka catch its tradition. The strangers coming here for the first time never feel good enough because of its unhealthy environmental condition but the plenty of food items must make them fascinated enough. Specially the main course named 'Biryani' is tremendously popular over the country.

Let's earn some knowledge about Biriyani. Old Dhaka Biriyani is a famous and beloved dish in Bangladesh, particularly in the capital city of Dhaka. It is a type of biriyani that is made with aromatic longgrain rice (Basmati), loving pieces of meat (usually beef or mutton), and a variety of spices and herbs (any plant with leaves, seeds, or flowers used for flavoring, food, medicine, or perfume).

What sets Old Dhaka Biriyani apart from other types of biriyani is the use of rose water (Golab Jal) and kewra water (similar to rose water), which give it a unique and distinct flavour. The dish is characteristically served with a side of raita, a yogurt-based sauce (we say it 'Doi Pattro') that helps to balance out the hotness of the biriyani.

Old Dhaka Biriyani has a rich history, dating back to the Mughal Empire, and is still considered a staple in Bangladeshi cuisine today. Many locals and tourists similarly seek out the best Old Dhaka Biriyani restaurants in the city to experience this delicious and traditional dish and so do we.

My brother offered me a dish of Biryani with Coke. It was distinct for me. Tasting Biriyani in Puran Dhaka accompanied with my beloved brother was the best experience I ever had. I tried to pay the bill but my brother didn't give me that chance at all. In addition to having Biriyani, both of us did many things that you will know later. We ate many other things there. The business of the city is strange. Most of the time, it will enlarge your anger level automatically. If you go to one place to another nearest place, you have to take enough time in your hand. Sometimes some street boys will come to you and want some food or money. I will recommend you that if you truly donate something to them, you should give them some food instead of money. If you give them some money, they will buy some intoxicating drugs. So be careful. You will also hear lots of toxic sounds like vehicles' sounds, people's shouted sound etc. The positive things are that if you become a tourist, you will get great attention of the people. You will get lots of foods here. You will be able to feel about how busy a city can be. These are my comments about old Dhaka. You have already known a lot of things about the old Dhaka. You will get a lot in the next chapters because the last chapters will be written on my expended time with my brother in Puran Dhaka. If you read all the next chapters, you will be able to know much more about this chapter, old Dhaka from my purely personal point of view. So, let's go to next one.

We left my uncle's apartment as quick as possible because of spending our special time alone. We first took a bus. But our bus didn't arrive our destination. After going half of the road, the bus authority called us to leave the bus. We felt justly exhausted. Then changing two buses and walking around 15 minutes, we finally arrived our location. The jam of Dhaka city always pushes me under my endurance. Believe you have known more or a little bit about the jam condition of Dhaka city.

Dhaka, the capital city of Bangladesh, is notorious for its traffic jam. The city is home to over 21 million people, and with the increasing population and rapid urbanization, the traffic situation has worsened over the years.

Anyway, spending some time, I was able to reach my brother's condo. I was a lucky one. A chance to celebrate a birthday party of a senior brother came to my life when I was with my brother in his condo for the first night. It was my first night with an enthusiastic birthday celebration. At last, my brother and I expressed one another's feelings through late night. My brother's life is full of loads of difficulties. I'll write down a book on his biography. Just wait a while for that. Having done these kinds of stuffs, we slept. Our first night was like this. The experience I achieved from here is to sleep each other and express thousands of feelings as well as get a great chance to celebrate birthday. These experiences are very important for my life. I did not know a man a few months before, and all at once, he came into my life, and we met each other and stayed together. Is it normal to you? Definitely a gigantic 'No'. If you remain in my position, you could feel how astonishing the feelings were. It's absolutely better than doing the boring classes in school. In school, teachers will control you. You are nothing to do. Your teacher will choose what to do. No time to notice what you want. So, life experience will give you more extra knowledge than spending plenty of time sitting in 4 walls.

I understood the importance so I instantly went to Dhaka showing thumb to lots of obstacles only for tasting life experience. This was one of my best instant decision. And finally, I've become able to stay couple of nights with my brother and write down this amazing chapter.

"I like to take instant decision. It either makes me smile or cry."

Exploring different places make someone compelling to learn some effective things. It helps someone discover some new things. So, travelling experiences have to have we. In this chapter, I am going to share some notable places and my experiences in those places. First of all, I will discuss the history and other things of the places I have recently visited then I will discuss my experience in those places.

University of Jagannath

Let's know a few information about JnU (abbreviation of Jagannath University).

History: In 1858; 165 years ago, it was not a university or college, it started as a school named Dhaka Brahma School. The school was established by Dinanath Sen, Prabhaticharan Roy, Anathbandhu Mallik and Brajasundar Kaitra. The name Jagannath School was given by Kishorilal Chowdhury, the Zamindar of Baliati in Manikganj, who took over the school in 1872 and renamed it after his father. In 1884; 139 years ago, it was raised to a second-grade college. In 1907, it became a first-grade college. The college started with 48 students. It was converted into Jagannath University in 2005 by passage in the national parliament of the Jagannath University Act-2005.

Other Things: Jagannath University is a public university located in Dhaka, the capital city of Bangladesh. Established in 2005, the university has quickly gained a reputation for providing high-quality education in a variety of disciplines, including arts, social sciences, natural sciences, business studies, and engineering.

The university is named after Jagannath, a Hindu deity, and is known for its rich cultural heritage and exciting student life. The campus is located in the heart of Dha-

JAGANNATH UNIVERSITY ka, making it easily accessible to students from all over the city. Jagannath University offers undergraduate, postgraduate, and doctoral programs in various fields of study, and its faculty members are highly qualified and experienced in their respective fields.

My Experience: This university is very small comparing to other public universities like University of Dhaka, University of Rajshahi, University of Chittagong etc.

So, it's not time consuming to explore. I finished to explore it within a few minutes. But I made me fascinated enough feeling the cold air inside the University. The beautiful architecture which is the theme view of the University will catch one's hearth effortlessly. Lots of buses will make you think for a while that why so many buses are here. The university is very small but abundance of buses is kept with great decoration. Why? Even though it is one of the most famous and academically one of the best universities in Bangladesh, JnU is the only non-residential University in this country. Jagannath University opens its first residential hall, only for females. That's why you can see lots of buses in the campus of the university. The buses send the students in different places in Dhaka and take them in the university back. However, I went to the faculty of English department cause my brother is a great student of English department. I went to TSC. I said a prayer there. Then I captured some beautiful pictures. That's all about JnU. It's not much interesting but something special for me.

AT JnU

University of Dhaka

We went DU two days later. You ought to know a little about Dhaka University first. 1. History. 2. Other things. 3. My experience.

History: Dhaka University, also known as the University of Dhaka, is a public research university located in Dhaka, the capital city of Bangladesh. It was established in 1921 and is the oldest university in the country.

The university has an extensive campus spread over 600 acres, and it is divided into several faculties and departments, including arts, science, business studies, engineering and technology, law, social sciences, and biological sciences. The university offers undergraduate, graduate, and postgraduate degree programs in various fields of study, including humanities, social sciences, natural sciences.

Other things: Dhaka University has a rich history of academic excellence and has produced many notable alumni, including Nobel Laureate economist Muhammad Yunus, former Bangladeshi president Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, and renowned filmmaker Satyajit Ray. The university is also known for its strong student activism and has been a centre for various social and political movements in Bangladesh.

My experience: It's time to share my experience in DU. Firstly, we fell in jam in the road of Dhaka which is as common as the sun rises in the east. Waiting hundreds of seconds, we became able to reach there. One of my brother's brother, who is a master of English grammar, was requested in order to exploring with us. Yeah, he told yes. He explored Muktijoddho Jadughor (Liberation war museum) with us which is situated next to Dhaka university.

We visited this very glorious place with great favour and enthusiasm. We were be able to learn many historical things by visiting there. The zinger of getting knowledge from real-life experience like I did is much more powerful and effective than getting knowledge from book. This is called learning something through appearing visually.

Unless we had great mental power, we couldn't go there in 41° C as well as keeping fast. We learnt many things by visiting both DU and the museum. To know the history of our country in a sound weather, this museum is in a word wonderful. We went to a dormitory of Dhaka University. The environment of the room made me upset for a while. How do the students hang out there? I can't get it. Anyway. I have achieved lots of experiences there. To visit the number one public university of Bangladesh as well as its craziest dormitory and the Liberation war museum was something that gave me plenty of unforgettable experiences. To study in this university is the dream of most of the students of our country but majority of them don't know how the reality of the university is like. But I experienced it several times. In December of the last year, I visited there and so did I in this year with my beloved brother. I have an experience of witnessing the dormitory of the university. I can't stay a single night there in that extreme unhygienic environment. So, I know better than those who just dream but never realize the reality.

By the way, I have also a romantic experience. I can play some of the piano tunes. I learnt it watching YouTube tutorials. Now I am good at it for some songs. I was requested to my brother for playing piano sitting down on the grass beside Karjon Hall. I did it. As my brother chaptered a video footage, I had to ensure my nails' better condition. My nails of two hand were too long that time but I didn't have any nail cutter. My brother had a sharp blade inside his wallet. He cut all of my nails down with extra care. I was just choked seeing his unfailing love for me.

I recorded a video as a memory at the time of cutting nails. My brother cut my nails.

I played piano on my phone sitting beside Karjon Hall. It was also recorded.

Each and every moment was mind blowing. It really purified my heart tremendously. Exploring DU, we went to Nilkhet, a notable place of Dhaka next to DU, which is very famous for lots of book shops. My brother bought a few books for me. We went to new market to buy a t-shirt. But the collection was not good at all. So, I left the place as quick as possible. It's matter of sorrow that some days later of our visitation, some parts of the new market were ruined by fire.

It's so sorrowful for the shop owners of that market as well as all people of our country. That's all about my experiences in DU I have gained plenty of experiences by visiting Dhaka university in my own eyes.

Sadar Ghat

In 1st day with my brother, we went to Sadar Ghat after visiting JnU. Sadar Ghat is a historic river port located in Dhaka, the capital city of Bangladesh. It is situated on the banks of the Buriganga River and is one of the busiest ports in the country. The name "Sadar Ghat" means "central landing stage" in Bengali. Sadar Ghat was built during the British colonial era in the early 20th century and was primarily used for the transportation of goods and people along the river. Today, it serves as an important centre for ferry services and water transport to various parts of the country, including neighbouring districts and cities (Chandpur, Barisal etc.).

Despite its historical and cultural significance, Sadar Ghat has faced many challenges over the years, including pollution and overcrowding. Efforts are underway to address these issues and preserve this important landmark for future generations.

The purification of the water of river Buriganga is 0%. The water colour is totally black. It always spreads bad and unbearable smell. Anyway. We saw loads of launches there. Even we visited inside one. Then we went Ahsan Manzil. Ahsan Manzil is a historic palace located in Dhaka, the capital city of Bangladesh.

It was built in the 19th century and served as the official residence of the Nawab of Dhaka. It has been designated as a national museum and showcases the lifestyle, art, and culture of the Nawabs of Dhaka. Ahsan Manzil is a significant cultural and historical landmark of Bangladesh and attracts a large number of visitors every year. But I'm sorry, I can't share any of my experiences on this remarkable architecture. I didn't enter there because the place had been closed before we went. That was my 1st day experience at Sadar Ghat and Ahsan Manzil with my brother.

Mirpur National Zoo

Mirpur National Zoo, also known as the Dhaka Zoo, is a popular zoo located in Mirpur, Dhaka, Bangladesh. It was established in 1974 and covers an area of approximately 186 acres.

My experience: I visited national zoo several times. All at once, we decided to visit it once again. I visited twice but my brother visited zero time. That's why we explored national zoo to take more experiences. We got ready as early as possible but we didn't go there on time due to the craziest traffic jam. At last, going the zoo, we watched a huge number of animals including tiger, lion, dear, bear, donkey etc. Many were unknown. We got super tired because of keeping fast and walking a lot. We stayed there about 3 hours. The most beautiful thing is the animal museum.

Spending 10 Taka, we visited the zoo museum. What an extraordinary experience we achieved visiting there! Lots of ferocious animals are kept as mummy. The animals which are not available in Bangladesh now are available there.

By writing down, it is impossible to give you the real experience.

I will recommend that all the parents should teach their child about animals by visiting zoo instead of telling them to read in an animal book. Your child will know the animal names and see them at a time. What an effective learning method it is! One of my teachers apply this method with his child to teach. And if you do this with your children in an enthusiastic mind setup, you will enjoy better amusement 100%. So, try to do it. Address to get the importance of life experience. I don't want to enlarge my writing right now.

"Animals' movement will remind your children about themselves that they didn't get in books."

Jamuna Future Park

Jamuna Future Park is a large shopping mall and entertainment complex located in Dhaka, the capital city of Bangladesh. It is one of the largest malls in South Asia, spanning over 1.4 million square feet of space.

The mall features a wide range of shopping options, including local and international brands, as well as a food court, cinema halls, an amusement park, an iceskating rink, and a bowling alley. It is also home to a number of offices and residential apartments.

My experience: I was super rich person in that day. I went there to get in shopping for my brother. I bought something very expensive from there with lots of money. Sometimes we need to be rich for others to enlarge the relationship stage as well as understand the world. But every time it's not possible. My brother also became expensive for me but I didn't want that. He brought me a gorgeous Panjabi. We stayed there about 3/4 hours. We explored lots of expensive brands and went to trail room to check clothes by wearing. But we didn't buy them.

I would like to give you a great idea. If you are a photographer lover, you can go some of outstanding brand like Zara, Artisan, Astorion etc. and trail some gorgeous outfits together with capturing some beautiful pictures with new clothes without buying them. It's funny, right. But I did this kind of thing. I made a joke. Don't try this with yourselves.

Done shopping from Jamuna Future Park, we were super excited enough. We left the mall after some golden hours. Then taking Coke, we returned our condo. This was our J.F.P journey. We have experienced a lot spending time there. Some are like how to choose perfect outfits, how to behave with shop staffs, how to trail clothes. Then which method should we follow to buy the perfect one? But the main thing that I learnt is how we can protect myself being slave of money. If you wish to buy someone something, don't become slave of your money. Buy him something whatever he likes, however the price is.

"Remember chance doesn't come repeatedly but money comes constantly. So, without noticing your pocket, empty your pocket for other's pleasure."

How two brothers' relationship can be so strange like I got by staying together. I didn't drink sufficient water that I need. A man should drink about 15.5 cups (3.7 L) of fluids a day. But I drank less than 1.5 L a day. My brother created force on me to overcome the very bad habit. He bought energetic product for me. I drank that regularly. We chatted all over the night without sleeping a single second. Most probably we were not used to sleeping too much at night. It will be almost 1.5/2 hours. At late night, we took seheri (eating heavy food at late night) which we had to take for keeping fast. We took bath together all days I stayed there. He was cleaning my body using shop and net. How memorable the days were! We went to mosque daily. One day we were selected to collect water for everyone. We had to go to a mosque for that. But the terrible thing is that the water would not be released perfectly. To fulfil 5 bottles, we had to spend 30 minutes there. That was very terrible. We did it without expressing any of our boring feelings. Spending 5 days, we went to another house where we stayed 2 days. Then we went to Uttara sector-11 to get in shopping once again. We visited Mascot Tower. We walked more than 1.5 kilometres without any reason. Then we entered sector-11 where lots of outfit brands are available. We went to Zam Zam tower which is very eye-catching. Then going Artisan outfitters, I bought a t-shirt for me although I didn't have any interest. I couldn't buy anything for my brother in that day.

THE EXPERIENCE

That was my unhappiness for the night. I didn't sleep well for this. The next day I again went to Uttara sector-11 and bought a shirt for my brother. Then happiness came effortlessly. That was our last moment.

School, college cherish limiting beliefs. The teachers don't encourage their students to become broad minded. Our system creates a syllabus and tells the students repeatedly that you have to cover your syllabus. Whether you like the syllabus or not is not their concern. They discourage you not to travel for experience. According to them, if you travel instead of covering your syllabus, you will be wasting your time and you will perform bad at exam. They want you to imprison inside 4 walls. When they impose a number of books on you and eventually you feel terrible and say yourself the books are very complicated, I hate them. Thus, limiting belief is automatically created in our brain. And these beliefs hurt our motivation. They lower our energy, and in fact they are wrong. How to eliminate this kind of belief. You have to figure it out first. You have to weaken them. You have to cut them out. Life experience can weaken this belief. When you go here and there, your mind will become broad. When you see a monument, some questions will come automatically from your brain about the monument. What is the history behind the monument? Why is it here? You can learn history naturally. When you see the nature, you will be a poet for a while. When you will see a wood, you will want to be an adventure. You will learn many things. These kinds of activities will weaken your limiting belief and impower your internal belief for learning in a proper way and natural way without any pressure. School education will increase your pressure but education from experience will make you independent learner. You will learn whatever you love. You will keep yourself free from tests, grades etc. As a result, anxiety can't grab you.

I want to share the most truth thing with you. I am the big son of my parents. I have a little brother. So, my parents have two sons. I have completed SSC with great grades and great marks but I can't plant a vegetable garden. I can't throw water up from a pond perfectly. I can't plant rice. I can't attend the rice land perfectly. I can't cook. I can't solve any problems so easily without taking help of my parents. I can't have a little idea to run a family beautifully. I can't have any knowledge on how to income and how to manage money. But I have a very good SSC result that my father doesn't have. I have enough knowledge on math like square, tan, sin, cot, geometry etc. but I can't use them for anything in real-life. My father knows nothing about tan, cos, square etc. but he can make a house. He has lots of skills on electricity. All fans, lights are set by him in our house. He can sow the rice seeds on the land and bring the rice in our house by doing all the processes perfectly. He can solve any problems very easily although he doesn't have a single degree. What are we learning for in school, college and university that we don't do such easy things that our father can do without a single degree? It is ridiculous. Useless education is nothing to life experience.

Mind it:

"You may have a dozen of degrees, but then you are not as expert as your father in real field because he has such experiences that you don't have." Suppose you bought a book which is written on some life experiences of an old man. You read the whole book and you are so excited about the book. Now you are thinking that you will gift the book to your friend. And you do it. Now 3 days later, your friend phones you and says, "This is the worst book I have ever read, there is no effective thing in it". He's disliked the book. Why did you feel good reading the book that your friend didn't like anymore? This is because you had lots of experiences, so you could able to understand the book and enjoy. But your friend didn't have any experience before. His parents didn't let him go out for obtaining knowledge of real life. His parents thought that staying inside 4 walls is more effective than going outside. That was their philosophy. Always remember:

"An experienced person can understand any complicated thing very easily because they can think from different angles that they got from real-life experience."

I am just trying to make you understand the importance of life experience by applying lots of examples.

Our system teaches us that you have lots of problems. You are not perfect. You have to make more and more money for freedom. You need to take PhD degree. You have to be like his son, her son. They will always tell you these kinds of things. Our media will tell you that your skin is not perfect. Your nose is flat. Your eye is so big. You are dark. You need to buy some white beauty cream or you need to have surgery. But you are completely perfect. You can take breath. You can see the beauty of the world. You can eat anything you like with your own hand. You can walk wherever you want to go. You can smile a happy smile with the combination of your mouth and teeth. Just think it closing your eyes. You will get your ultimate answer. Slavery related thoughts can never give you freedom. It will teach you just being a good slave of your government or any multinational company. To engage you with their institution, they will encourage you to follow the present system. Follow just one rule. I think you've already known what the rule is. Your own choice is useless to them. Getting experienced by taking action is worthless to them. As a result, you are falling into painful anxiety and depression.

"Anxiety kills someone's positive visualization."

"Take everything simply because simplicity gives more comfort and less stress."

You may have a nice cycle but you can't ride it. How do you learn? By reading books? A big No. You should learn by falling and becoming injured repeatedly in real field. You can't ride a cycle by reading books or watching tutorials on how to ride a cycle. Taking action is most important that our curriculum doesn't teach us. A bird can build their house within 3 days but we can't do it spending 30 years. A horse can run many kilometres in a day but we can't run 100 metres perfectly. An ant can carry hundreds of sugar specks but we can't carry 40 kilograms of rice bag. Why? Can they read books? Can they write? Can they eat more than us? No. This is because most of us have no experience on these activities that the bird, ant and horse do. They have learnt these by taking action and gaining experience. But we don't have the brave of taking action.

"Mind it: 10 years education on acting can't make someone a great actor or actress instead of acting on the real-life stages."

Without experience, nothing can be possible. We learn about numbers. But!

"Numbers were not previously formed; they are being created out of necessity."

People needed to count and then numbers were formed.

We learn ICT in school over the 10 years but we can't design a poster. Because we don't have experience. We just memorize theory. Remember:

"Only theoretical education is worthless and dangerous unless it is converted into practical experience." *

Book learning is good but it's not enough. It's dangerous sometimes. There are too many people who just focus on books for everything. Learning just from books is not enough. The best learning, most learning happens from life experiences. Learning from facing some horrible experiences, learning from some unexpected, dangerous, stupid experiences is the best way to learn the best things.

For example, I know how to go to Rajshahi, the city of peace. I know which sorts of transports are much more friendly for traveling. I know which way is better comparing to the other options for going my destination very easily because I have already a great experience of traveling about 36 times within a few months from my home to Rajshahi. So, I can manage myself very easily than many other people in case of facing the difficulties in bus stand or on the way. If I learnt the procedures of going to one location to another location focusing on reading books or watching maps without getting life experiences, it would be quite complicated for me to deal with the full processes. Reading more and more books is very good habit but not enough.

A stupid learner is like someone who learns books in everywhere. They need to gain knowledge from their life but they are still that time reading books.

"At the time of train journey, look at the outside and also inside people attentively instead of scrolling your phone or reading book. The nature and those people will give you such knowledge and experience that you never got in the book and your phone."

Paulo Coelho, the author of 'The Alchemist' gave enough importance on the main character named Santiago than The Englishman. The Englishman was used to reading books in any situation. He was going to oasis, the place where water, plants, foods are available in spite of desert, with a view to finding out the Alchemist but he was still reading books on the alchemist. On the other hand, Santiago, the hero of the book, victim of many dangerous affairs, is always enthusiastic to let go his all-sad stories faced by him on the way of his journey. He was not a book worm but was someone special than a bookworm. He had personal legend. He achieved lots of experiences by facing realities like being a shepherd, learning Arabic language, 1 year selling experience and introducing himself with crystal and losing money etc. So, life experience is very essential than just depending on learning books.

"If I have six months to earn knowledge independently, I'll first push myself in the real world for five months and finally spend one month on books."

I would like to share a story of Derek Sivers, a successful businessman. He was a singer. When he fell into trouble in case of selling CD, he created a website (cdbaby.com). I'm telling you it in a general way. But that was so tough to implement for him. In 1997, making a successful website was not so easy task. It was super complicated. By taking action, spending 1000$, his website was sold in 22 million USD in 10 years though he was not the owner of the money. He donates his website to a charity. However. For going that position, he faced lots of real-life experiences. He experienced thousands of people before his success. If it didn't happen, he would never become a successful one. He experienced how to sell the CDs. He experienced lots of things that helped him reach that position. So, taking action for getting experience is much more important.

Robert Kiyosaki has talked about a great real-life experience. Now I'll share a concept of his very famous book, Rich Dad Poor Dad. This is not unknown for you guys.

Robert and Mike were two bosom friends. But both of them had a strong desire to get rich. Robert's father was a school teacher. He believed that everyone should follow one method to get rich. That is;

Read textbooks, memorize books, attend examinations, get good marks, finally get a good job and get rich. It is ridiculous, isn't it? 100%.

Can anyone get rich by following this stupid method? To me, no. When Robert refused his father's formula, his father told him to go to Mike's house and discuss with Mike's father. Because he was going to become one of the super-rich persons in Hawaii at that time. Both of them went to Mike's father house and discussed with him for teaching them about how to get rich. Mike's father appointed Robert in a super boring work and he knew that Robert must quit the job. And eventually he did it. Robert quitted the job. Then Mike's dad offered him some money for the job. Robert completely hated the job and told that Mike's dad cheated him instead of teaching him. Robert believed that teaching is like something which is done in a classroom full of teaching related instruments like white board, black board, projector etc. Mike's father told Robert that it's a super common method to teach. It's not as beneficial as real-life experience. I've appointed you in this job for understanding the field and understanding the importance of real-life experience. It will help you to get rich. So, take action, take action and take action. Face the world, get experienced and become rich.

Do you know anything about Shihab Chottur? He is someone who have crossed thousands of kilometres just walking on foot. He has experienced 6 countries on the way of India to Mecca for Haj. I noticed him on social media that different people of different countries are showing their best hospitalities and giving him shelter for living at night. He has talked with thousands of people and made friends with many people. He has been admired by lots of people. He has experienced different kind of weather of each country. He faced snowfall. He faced rain. He faced drought. He experienced of eating verities of foods. Sometimes he has fallen in danger and overcome that perfectly. He has seen the culture of each country from very close. Sometimes he has attended some of the festivals. How many experiences he has gained I can't finish to say. I don't know how your comments will be about it. Isn't it something powerful than staying inside 4 walls with lots of textbooks? Isn't it worth learning? Now he can take any action very easily because he has plenty of experiences on how to manage difficulties, how to do it, how to do that etc. Experience gives someone courage to take action. Now everyone will call me as a crazy because I am here inspiring you for gaining experience acting like Shihab. But it's not like that. I am just trying to make you understand that why life experience is up to any education. I think you have got it.

If I didn't explore Dhaka with my brother, I were not be able to learn about the reality of Dhaka. I couldn't get a brother's unfailing love. I couldn't write down this book at all. Writing this book is also the result of my last two books' writing experience. I also believe that this experience will help me to be a great writer in future. So, give importance on real life experiences.

I've already added many things about reallife experience. If you understand the real meaning of it, I believe you are going to earn much knowledge that you can't imagine right now. I can imagine that's why I have written down this book to make you visualize. I am ready to know your experience next. Our system won't give you chance to experience your life. Don't care about that. Kick that out for a while. And believe:

"Life experience is your best teacher."
